

Bea's Song

David Firth

Is the sun going to come up today? You know the sun never did come my way.
Perhaps it's in the late afternoon. Is it February, April or June?
I feel kinda hungry and yet, the feeling's more cold and more wet.
I don't recognize you at all. Are you, family?

I'm not really sure where I am. I miss the warmth of my toes in the sand.
It's nice when my sister is near Why she has to go home is not clear.
Those people are stealing my things. I don't recall why I have this gold ring?
The only time I feel safe is when you're here.

I love you. Do you love me?
I have no memory of who's in the mirror.
The world that used to be mine
Is fading with empty time.

A sweet couple lives with me now. They seem happy up-there on the wall.
I offer them food every night They just smile but they won't take a bite.
It feels like I'm always in pain. Someone left me here out in the rain.
I like when the puppy sits close beside me.

I love you. Do you love me?
I have no memory of who's in the mirror.
The world that used to be mine Is fading with empty time.

Is the sun going to come up today? You know the sun never did come my way.
These people are stealing my things. I don't recall why I have this gold ring.
It feels like I'm always in pain. Someone left me here out in the rain.
I don't recognize you at all. Are you family?

I think I love you. Do you love me?
I have no memory of Who's in the mirror.
The world that used to be mine Is fading with empty time.

Do you love me?

Copyright © 2018 by David Firth